Central Bank Reduces Interest Rate to 23%

The Monetary Policy Committee (MPC) of the Central Bank of Nigeria (CBN) has announced a resetting of the baseline interest rate, the Monetary Policy Rate (MPR), to 23 per cent from 26.5 per cent. Mobile banking solutions

The Governor of the CBN, Mr Olayemi Cardoso, announced this on Tuesday in Abuja while presenting a communiqué from the 307th MPC meeting.

According to Cardoso, the committee also recalibrated the Standing Facilities Corridor (SFR) around the MPR from +50/-450 basis points to +50/-300 basis points.

He, however, said that the Cash Reserve Requirement (CRR) was retained at 45 per cent for deposit money banks, 16 per cent for merchant banks and 75 per cent for non-TSA public sector deposits.

"The committee decided to reset the MPR and recalibrate the policy corridor as an important operational realignment. "It is aimed at strengthening monetary policy transmission and reinforcing the primacy of the monetary policy rate," he said.

He said that the recalibration of the corridor did not constitute a change in the current monetary policy stance. He described the step as an operational reset to enhance the effectiveness of monetary policy and support the transition to an inflation-targeting framework.

"Members are of the view that the current macroeconomic environment remains supportive of such a recalibration without undermining the disinflation process," Cardoso said.

He said that in arriving at the decision, the committee took note that the divergence between the MPR and the prevailing market rates had weakened the effectiveness of monetary policy transmission. BOI bond information

"Members noted that the bank's ongoing repair of the monetary policy implementation framework, including the adoption of Nigerian Overnight Financing Rate (NOFR) as a transaction-based operational benchmark, has improved the transparency of money market operations. "The committee, therefore, considered a reset of the MPR and recalibration of the corridor appropriate to better align the monetary policy implementation framework with market realignment.

"This will strengthen policy transmission and restore the MPR as a principal signal of monetary policy," he said.

The CBN governor said the recalibration represented an operational realignment of the framework and should not in itself be construed as a change in the underlying policy stance.

He said that the MPC broadly observed the increasing resilience demonstrated by the Nigerian economy.

He said that the resilience was reflected by the moderating inflation, robust external reserve buffers, improved external sector fundamentals, and strengthened investor confidence.

Alleged Wiretapping: Court Fixes October 26 for Ruling on El-Rufai's No-Case Submission

The Federal High Court sitting in Abuja has reserved ruling on a no-case submission filed by former Kaduna State Governor, Mallam Nasir El-Rufai, in a wiretapping charge brought against him by the Department of State Services (DSS).

The DSS filed an amended five-count charge against El-Rufai following comments he made during a February 13, 2026, interview with Arise TV, in which he alleged that associates had listened to the telephone communications of the National Security Adviser, Nuhu Ribadu.

The secret police accused the former governor of violating provisions of the Cybercrimes and Nigerian Communications laws.

At the resumed hearing on Tuesday, counsel to El-Rufai, Paul Erokoro, SAN, informed the court that the defence filed its no-case submission on August 26, 2026.

Another counsel, A.K. Ekere, who held brief for Erokoro, urged the court to dismiss the charges against the former governor and award costs against the DSS.

Ekere argued that the prosecution had failed to present a prima facie case requiring El-Rufai to enter a defence.

Responding, prosecuting counsel, Oluwale Aladedoye, SAN, told the court that the prosecution filed its response to the no-case submission on September 6, 2026.

Humanitarian service, key to peacebuilding — NBM tells ECOWAS

By Titus Oise, Benin

The NBM of Africa Worldwide has called on ECOWAS and other regional stakeholders to give greater recognition to humanitarian intervention, community support and public education as tools for preventing conflict in strengthening peace across West Africa.

The President of the organisation, Dr Charles Chimezie, made the call in Abuja while delivering NBM's World Peace Day address at the ECOWAS Secretariat, Asokoro, stressing that peace could not be sustained through security measures alone.

Chimezie said humanitarian organisations had an important role to play in addressing social conditions that could make vulnerable communities susceptible to crime, violence, hopelessness and other forms of insecurity.

He said NBM had, over the years, used humanitarian service as part of its contribution to peacebuilding, with interventions covering healthcare, education, disaster relief, welfare assistance, environmental sanitation and support for vulnerable families and communities.

The NBM president disclosed that members of the organisation had donated blood during the month to hospitals in Benin City, Abuja, Kuje, Lafia, Delta and Jos, describing the initiative as a practical demonstration of how saving lives could contribute to building more compassionate communities.

From Okokomaiko to Instant Millionaire: How One Bottle of Guinness Is Rewriting Fortunes for 642 Nigerians

Guinness Nigeria's "Open For More" consumer promotion has reached a significant milestone, with 856 Nigerians emerging as winners across eight consecutive weekly draws, reinforcing the brand's commitment to rewarding consumer loyalty with life-changing value.

Among the beneficiaries is Taiwo Adebola, a resident of Okokomaiko, whose ₦1 million win has already begun to reshape the trajectory of his business. The unexpected windfall provided him with the capital injection needed to strengthen his enterprise and pursue initiatives he had long deferred - a testament to the tangible impact the promotion is having on everyday Nigerians.

Structured as a weekly live draw held every Friday at 3 p.m. on Guinness Nigeria's Instagram page, the promotion rewards 107 consumers each round. Of these, seven walk away with ₦1 million apiece, while the remaining 100 each receive ₦100,000. Over the course of eight draws, this has translated into 800 winners of ₦100,000 and 56 new ₦1 million winners, bringing the cumulative total to 856.

Speaking on the promotion's progress, Mayor Esiaba, Category Head of Beer at Guinness Nigeria, said: "We have seen a strong response to Open For More since the promotion began, and it has been great to see consumers from different parts of the country getting the opportunity to win. We have completed the first eight draws, but there are still many more opportunities to participate and win. We are looking forward to seeing more consumers become part of the story."

Minna tragedy: South-South youths reject calls to remove NSCDC CG

By Odieh Ramon, Yenagoo

The South-South Youths Initiative (SSYI) has condemned calls for the removal of the Commandant-General of the Nigeria Security and Civil Defence Corps (NSCDC), Prof. Ahmed Abubakar Audi, following the death of 37 suspected miners in Niger State.

The youths in a statement signed by their their National President, Imeabe Saviour Oscar, described the calls as "misplaced, unjust and politically motivated."

Oscar said it was wrong to hold the NSCDC boss responsible for an alleged operational breach committed by a state commandant.

According to the group, the NSCDC operates a defined administrative structure in which state commandants report directly to zonal commanders, who are assistant commandant-generals.

He said the various state commands also have legal, intelligence, administrative and operational departments responsible for their day-today activities.

Oscar further argued that Audi had previously issued circulars warning personnel against detaining suspects beyond the constitutionally prescribed period.

He said: "It is on record that the Commandant General has issued several circulars warning all formations against detaining suspects beyond 24 hours, in line with the Constitution.

"Specifically, circulars to this effect were issued in 2022 and 2024 and widely circulated to all State Commands."

Oscar described as "wrong, unjust and mischievous" attempts to demand Audi's removal over an alleged offence committed by a state commandant.

"It is therefore wrong, unjust and mischievous for individuals or groups to call for the head of the Commandant General for an offence allegedly committed by a State Commandant", he said.

The South-South youths also linked the calls for Audi's removal to the corps' operations against illegal mining, alleging that "some powerful illegal miners and their collaborators" were behind the campaign.

Nigeria-France Trade Hits N18.56trn as Tinubu Seeks More Jobs, Investment

Trade between Nigeria and France has risen to N18.56 trillion since President Bola Ahmed Tinubu assumed office, with French investments also increasing to $233.22 million, according to figures presented by the Nigerian government.

The figures represent a sharp increase from N4.71 trillion recorded between 2020 and 2022, with investment rising from $100.76 million during the same period to $233.22 million between 2023 and 2025.

The development comes amid renewed efforts by Nigeria and France to deepen economic cooperation, with President Tinubu calling for stronger focus on investments capable of creating jobs, expanding industries and developing infrastructure.

At the 10th France-Nigeria Business Council meeting, Tinubu said the bilateral relationship had moved beyond diplomatic dialogue into what he described as "serious economic execution."

"We are ready for investment that builds, capital that produces, and an enterprise that creates jobs," the President said.

He urged Nigerian and French businesses to translate the growing relationship into tangible economic opportunities, including factories, hotels, ports, energy projects, technology platforms and agricultural value chains.

The meeting brought together prominent Nigerian and French business leaders, including Aliko Dangote, Abdul Samad Rabi, Tony Elumelu, Wale Tinubu, Kola Karim, Patrick Pouyanné of TotalEnergies, Rodolphe Saadé of CMA CGM, and representatives of Danone and Accor.

A major development at the meeting was the agreement between Accor and Shoreline Group to establish Nigeria's first national hotel platform, which the Presidency described as a sign of growing confidence in the country's hospitality, tourism and investment sectors.

The economic relationship has also expanded into Nigeria's creative and digital economy.

The meeting was convened at the instance of the Minister of Marine and Blue Economy, Adegboyega Oyetola, following recent reforms arising from the enactment of the Nigerian Ports Economic Regulatory Agency Act, 2026.

Oyetola had on September 3 directed the transfer of Inland Dry Port regulatory functions from NPERA, saying the move was necessary to create a clearer distinction between port regulation, development and operations.

The Nigerian Ports Authority (NPA) and the Nigerian Ports Economic Regulatory Agency (NPERA) have begun moves to resolve overlapping responsibilities in the management of Inland Dry Ports (IDPs), following the Federal Government's decision to transfer related functions to the NPA.

The development followed a high-level meeting between the two agencies in Lagos, where officials discussed the Nigeria's $700 million Cabotage Vessel Financing Fund (CVFF) is facing a major hurdle as shipowners seeking access to the facility struggle to secure cargo contracts required by banks before vessel financing can be approved.

The situation has created a difficult cycle for indigenous operators, who need financing to acquire vessels but are being asked to demonstrate secured cargo capable of generating revenue to repay the loans.

Since applications opened in January, 92 applications have been submitted for the fund, but only 20 have reached the Primary Lending Institutions (PLIs), while just one has progressed to final approval.

Under the financing arrangement, applicants are expected to provide 15 per cent of the vessel acquisition cost as equity, with 50 per cent coming from the CVFF and the remaining 35 per cent financed by the participating banks.

However, the banks, which carry the credit risk on their portion, are demanding cargo contracts before committing funds.

Anokwuru Mike, Group Head, Oil and Gas at Zenith Bank, one of the participating banks, said vessels would not be financed without a contract attached to them, stressing that operators needed a clear commercial arrangement capable of supporting loan repayment.

Industry stakeholders said the requirement was creating a major obstacle because shipowners are finding it difficult to secure cargo contracts from cargo owners while they lack the vessels needed to compete for the business.

Osun Assembly Endorses State Police Amendment, Progresses on Parks Management Bill

Opeyemi Abolarinwa

The Osun State House of Assembly on Tuesday passed a resolution endorsing the Sixth Alteration to the 1999 Constitution which seeks to establish State Police, describing it as a critical step to strengthen security and deepen federalism.

The resolution was adopted during plenary at the Hallowed Chamber of the Assembly, where the Speaker, Rt Hon Adewale Egbedun, led deliberations on the Constitution Amendment Bill transmitted by the National Assembly.

Deliberations took centre stage as Speaker Egbedun acknowledged the letter from the National Assembly notifying the House to debate the proposed alteration.

The lawmakers who lend their voices to the bill in a comprehensive debate includes, Deputy Speaker, Rt Hon Akinyode Oyewusi and Hon Lawrence Adeoti, Hon Adewumi Adeyemi, Hon Taofeeq Olayiwola, Hon Tajudeen Adeyemi, Hon Kanmi Ajibola, Hon Abiola Awoyeye, Hon Babajide Kofoworola and Hon Kasope Abolarin.

The lawmakers examined the imperatives of effective policing capable of tackling crime and insecurity, noting that officers with better understanding of local terrain and peculiarities would be better positioned to intercept and dislodge criminal elements.

In its resolution, the House acknowledged the importance of state policing, stressing that the initiative would enhance grassroots security and strengthen Nigeria's journey towards true federalism.

Dangote to Support Two Million Women with Refinery IPO Share Ownership –Aliko Dangote

President and Chief Executive of Dangote Industries Limited, Aliko Dangote, has announced plans for the Aliko Dangote Foundation to collaborate with state governments to empower vulnerable women across Nigeria through participation in the Dangote Petroleum Refinery and Petrochemicals Limited Initial Public Offering (IPO).

Dangote made the announcement in New York during the 81st United Nations General Assembly while responding to a question from the Secretary to the Yobe State Government, Dr. Goje Mohammed. The discussion focused on how partnerships between government and the private sector can help conflict-affected communities, particularly widows, build sustainable financial futures through investment opportunities.

According to Dangote, the Foundation will work closely with state governments to ensure that women from vulnerable groups, including widows and victims of conflict, can take advantage of the refinery's share offering and begin building long-term wealth through equity ownership.

The initiative is designed to expand access to Nigeria's capital market by giving women who might otherwise be excluded the opportunity to become shareholders in one of Africa's largest industrial enterprises.

Speaking on the programme, Dangote revealed that the Foundation plans to provide additional support to participating women by donating shares to complement their investments.

"We are partnering with state governments to ensure that widows and other vulnerable women are able to buy shares in the refinery," he said.

He explained that women who purchase shares under the IPO will receive an additional allotment of shares from the Foundation, helping them establish a long-term financial asset.

"Beyond enabling them to buy shares, the Foundation will also support them by donating additional shares that they can hold as savings for the future," Dangote noted.

The programme targets up to two million women nationwide, making it one of the largest financial inclusion and women's empowerment initiatives linked to Nigeria's capital market.

2027 Presidency: Umahi Challenges Obi, Says 'Show South-East What You've Done'

• Minister says Tinubu's projects have transformed region;

• North-East presidential aide urges Atiku to quit race, claims six million votes unavailable to ADC

By | Goodluck E. Adubazi, Abuja

The Minister of Works, Senator David Umahi, has challenged the presidential candidate of the Nigeria Democratic Congress (NDC), Peter Obi, to explain to the people of the South-East what he has done for the region before seeking their support for the presidency in 2027.

Umahi made the declaration in Abuja while addressing a gathering involving the National Association of Nigerian Students (NANS), civil society organisations and Senior Special Assistants to President Bola Ahmed Tinubu on community engagement, during a presentation on ongoing Federal Government road projects across the country.

The minister argued that the South-East should assess political leaders based on their records and the tangible benefits they have delivered to the region.

He maintained that the infrastructure projects being undertaken by the Tinubu administration in the South-East represented a major intervention in the region and urged the people to openly acknowledge the projects.

Umahi said political leaders seeking the presidency should be prepared to present their records to the people.

"Let the people come and say, this is what we have done for the people of South-East. We want to be president; let us know what we have done for the people of South-East," he said.

The minister also called on South-East leaders to be "bold and vocal" in explaining what he described as the benefits of the Tinubu administration to the region.

According to him, supporting President Tinubu should not be a matter for which individuals are insulted, arguing that Nigerians have the right to support any candidate of their choice.

He said: "It is the right of every Igbo man to support President Tinubu and his people. You should not insult him for such decisions."

Umahi further declared that the South-East could not produce a president through its votes alone and urged the region to adopt what he described as a strategic approach ahead of the 2027 election.

Alake Unveils CIEAD, Seeks Unified African Architecture for Critical Minerals

By | Goodluck E. Adubazi, Abuja

The Chairman of the Africa Minerals Strategy Group (AMSG) and Nigeria's Minister of Solid Minerals Development, Dr. Dele Alake, has unveiled the Continental Integration and Economic Assurance Declaration (CIEAD) as a landmark framework to establish a unified architecture for Africa's critical and solid minerals value chains.

Alake made the disclosure on Monday at the 3rd Africa Minerals Strategy Group High-Level Roundtable on Critical Minerals Development in Africa, held in New York, United States, on the sidelines of the 81st Session of the United Nations General Assembly.

The high-level roundtable, themed "From Resources to Wealth: Continental Cooperation for Mineral Value Addition, Data Sovereignty, Innovative Financing and Critical Minerals Security," brought together African leaders, ministers and other stakeholders to deliberate on strategies for transforming the continent's mineral resources into sustainable economic wealth.

According to Alake, the proposed CIEAD is designed to provide a continental framework for greater integration of Africa's critical minerals sector and strengthen cooperation across the entire value chain.

He said the strength of the gathering reflected the progress made in Africa's solid minerals sector, particularly the growth of the AMSG as a platform for continental cooperation.

The minister urged African countries that are yet to join the AMSG to become members, stressing that greater participation would enhance synergy in the deployment of ideas, resources and efforts towards

Kano Task Force Secures 230 Convictions, Arrests 380

The Kano State Multi-Agency Task Force on Drug Abuse and Illicit Trafficking has arrested 380 suspects and secured over 230 convictions in two months of intensified operations across the state.

The Chairman of the Task Force, Muhuyi Magaji, disclosed this at a press briefing in Kano, while reviewing the committee's activities since its inauguration on July 22, 2026.

He said the operations targeted drug joints, criminal hideouts and other identified hotspots linked to drug abuse, thuggery, phone snatching and related social vices.

According to him, the operations led to the recovery of various illicit substances, including Cannabis Sativa, Tramadol, Diazepam, Pentazocine, Pregabalin, Exol-5 and a designer drug containing Methamphetamine.

The Task Force also recovered locally made weapons, including knives, cutlasses, daggers and clubs, allegedly used by suspected criminals to intimidate residents and resist arrest.

Magaji disclosed that about 870,000 capsules of Pregabalin were seized from a pharmaceutical company over suspected diversion for illicit use.

He warned pharmaceutical companies, pharmacy managers and other stakeholders against allowing controlled drugs to leak into illegal markets, urging them to strengthen supply-chain monitoring and internal controls.

On child protection, the chairman said two dealers, Kabiru Isa and Usman Hamisu, were convicted for allegedly exposing 43 underage children to intoxicating substances.

2027: OK movement will return fuel subsidy – Kwankwaso

The vice presidential candidate of the Nigerian Democratic Congress, NDC, Rabiu Kwankwaso, has said the party would reintroduce fuel subsidy in a different form if it wins the January 2027 presidential election.

Kwankwaso stated this in an interview with Arise TV, describing President Bola Tinubu's decision to remove the subsidy on his first day in office as a mistake that has plunged Nigeria into what he described as a "total mess, economically."

The former governor of Kano State said there were several ways the subsidy could be reintroduced without returning to the previous system.

He added that the NDC would focus on building more refineries and implementing measures that would significantly reduce the price of fuel across the country.

"We're bringing back fuel subsidy in our own way. There are so many ways to do that. Now we have a refinery built by a businessman and I am sure more will be built.

"If individuals in this country can build refinery, I see no reason why the government will not build refineries.

Bandits have reportedly demanded N30 million ransom for the release of six Islamic clerics abducted in Zamfara State.

The clerics were reportedly abducted after attending a special prayer session for President Bola Tinubu and the All Progressives Congress, APC.

The claim was made by conflict reporter, D English Alhaji, in a post on Facebook on Tuesday.

Bandits demand N30m for clerics abducted in Zamfara

He said the six Sheikhs were abducted after attending the prayer session organised by the Director-General of the APC campaign and senator representing Zamfara West, Abdulaziz Yari.

According to him, the bandits are demanding N30 million for the release of the clerics.

"These are the six Sheikhs that were abducted by bandits in Zamfara after attending special prayers session for Tinubu and APC, organised by the DG campaign for APC, Sen. Abdulaziz Yari," he wrote.

"Bandits are now demanding N30 million ransom for their release."

Lagos: Police arrest suspected cultist, recover pistol, axe, others in Ikorodu

The Lagos State Police Command has arrested a 36-year-old suspected cultist, Muyideen Olatunbosun, and recovered a rubber-made pistol, an axe, criminal charms and an illicit drug popularly known as "Ice" during an intelligence-led anti-crime patrol in Ikorodu.

A statement by the command said Olatunbosun was arrested by police operatives while they were conducting patrols around Idi-Iroko, Ogolonto and Agric areas of Ikorodu, Lagos State, following information received during the operation.

The command said the arrest was part of its continued efforts to tackle cultism and other criminal activities across the state.

A search conducted on the suspect after his arrest led to the recovery of one rubber-made pistol, one axe, criminal charms and the illicit drug known as "Ice".

"The suspect is currently in police custody and is assisting with the ongoing investigation. Efforts are also ongoing to apprehend other members of his alleged cult group," the statement said.

Police arrest man who allegedly killed girlfriend over HIV status in Enugu

Operatives of the Enugu State Police Command have arrested a 30-year-old man, Okpara Emmanuel, over the alleged murder of his girlfriend.

The deceased was simply identified as Chinyere, as her surname, age and address were yet to be established.

Emmanuel was apprehended at his residence at Olympic Layout, One-Day, Enugu, according to a statement issued on Tuesday by the Command's spokesperson, Daniel Ndukwe, at the State Headquarters GRA, Enugu.

During preliminary interrogation, Emmanuel confessed to killing the deceased after an argument between the duo over the source of a Human Immunodeficiency Virus. He later said that during the argument, he hit her with a pestle, eventually leading to her death.

"On September 21, 2026, at about 6:30 pm, following information that he had allegedly murdered his girlfriend. Preliminary investigation indicates that the suspect allegedly killed the victim on September 19, wrapped her remains in nylon and locked them inside the toilet of his apartment.

"The offensive odour of the decomposing body subsequently attracted neighbours, who forced the door open and apprehended him before the arrival of the police. The putrefying remains were evacuated to a mortuary for preservation and autopsy, while efforts are ongoing to trace and notify her relatives.

"During preliminary interrogation, the suspect confessed to the crime, stating that the incident followed an argument between him and the deceased over allegations of who infected the other with Human Immunodeficiency Virus (HIV). He further stated that, during the argument, he struck the deceased on the head with a pestle, resulting in her death, and subsequently wrapped and dumped her remains inside the toilet," the statement partly read.

Ndukwe noted that the suspect was "rescued from an angry mob and re-arrested by police operatives attached to Awkunanaw Division."

According to the statement, the State Commissioner of Police, Mamman Giwa, has ordered the State Criminal Investigation Department to investigate the circumstances of the incident and "ensure the suspect is arraigned in court upon conclusion of investigations."

The police boss warned members of the public, "particularly unsuspecting young women, to inform trusted relatives or friends of their movements and exercise caution about whom they visit or spend time with."

In a video seen on Tuesday by our correspondent via the X handle of one tweep, Official nwaonye igbo, a man with blood stains around his nose was seen in the midst of some men whose numbers couldn't be ascertained.

Thereafter, another man went around inside the house and opened a door. There, the decomposing body of a purported lady was seen lying on the floor,

Flood: One child missing as police rescue nine others in drowning school bus

Police in Anambra have rescued seven schoolchildren and two adults from drowning as their school bus got stuck in a flood occasioned by high rainfall on Tuesday. One schoolchild was however declared after the incident.

The incident occurred in the early hours of Tuesday, September 22, 2026, when the schoolchildren and adults were caught in the flood while travelling along Nibo-Isiagu Road in Awka, Anambra State.

The Anambra State Police Command spokesperson, Tochukwu Ikenga in a press release said its Safe School Operatives, working with concerned members of the community, swiftly mobilised to the scene after receiving information about the incident and rescued the nine victims to safety.

The release said after the rescue operation, one child involved in the incident remained unaccounted for, prompting the police to activate a sustained search and rescue operation in the area.

Ikenga said operation is being conducted in collaboration with community members and relevant stakeholders to find the missing child.

He said: "The Commissioner of Police, Anambra State Command, CP Nnanna Oji Ama, has directed that the search operation be sustained and expanded.

"He also appealed to residents, particularly those living or operating around the affected route, to provide the police and other responding agencies with any information that could assist in locating the missing child.

"The command urge parents, guardians, school authorities and motorists to exercise extreme caution around flooded roads, bridges and waterways, particularly during periods of heavy rainfall.

"Parents and guardians are advised to ensure that children do not attempt to cross flooded or otherwise dangerous routes.

"The command remains committed to protecting schoolchildren and would continue to strengthen collaboration with communities and relevant agencies under the Safe School Initiative to prevent avoidable loss of lives during emergencies."

2027: Why We Must Massively Support Kale Kawu, For Kwarans' Liberation –

By Chief Otunola A. Awoniyi

There are moments in the history of a people when silence is no longer an option. Kwara State today is at that defining moment. As we approach the 2027 general elections, the choice before us is not about mere political slogans, but about the survival, dignity and future of our dear state. This is why I am unequivocal in my declaration: for the total liberation of Kwarans from fear, hunger and misgovernance, we must massively support Engr. Sulaiman Bolakale Kawu and his running mate, Rev. Cornelius Oluwasegun Fawenu.

The emergence of Engr. Kale Kawu as the consensus governorship candidate of the Peoples Democratic Party, PDP, following extensive consultations led by our leader, Dr. Abubakar Bukola Saraki, CON, and the selfless withdrawal of other eminently qualified aspirants, is a clear sign that the PDP is united, focused and ready to rescue Kwara. That spirit of sacrifice that produced him is the same spirit Kwara needs to heal.

THE GOLDEN ERA: 2003 TO 2019 - A PERIOD OF MASS PROSPERITY

For those who have forgotten, and for the young ones who were too young to understand, we must remind ourselves of what Kwara enjoyed from 2003 to 2019 under the visionary leadership of Sen. Dr. Abubakar Bukola Saraki, CON, as Executive Governor from 2003 to 2011, and his successor, Alhaji Abdulfatah Ahmed, from 2011 to 2019. That 16-year period was an era of mass prosperity and deliberate development in Kwara State. It was not a government of propaganda; it was a government of projects and people.

Under Dr. Bukola Saraki, Kwara witnessed unprecedented institutional transformation. It was Saraki who established the Kwara State University, Malete, KWASU, to ensure inclusive educational access for the people of Kwara State. He established the International Aviation College, Ilorin, which trained pilots from across Africa. He established the Harmony Advanced Diagnostic Centre, which made Kwara a medical tourism destination. He built the Kwara Football Academy, the Metropolitan Square, the ultra-modern State Secretariat, International Vocational Centre in Ajase-Ipo, the Cargo Terminal, and repositioned the civil service.

Crucially, Saraki established the famous Shonga Farms Holdings in Edu Local Government, where commercial agriculture was revolutionized and over 3,000 youths were employed, and he attracted Shoprite Mall to Ilorin, the first of its kind in the North-Central, which opened up Ilorin to modern retail economy and created hundreds of jobs. These were not audio projects; they were visible, job-creating investments.

He introduced Nigeria's first Conditional Cash Transfer and Community Health Insurance Scheme for the poor, which was later adopted by the Federal Government. He empowered our youth, created jobs, and ensured salaries and pensions were paid as and when due. Our traditional rulers were respected with adequate welfare, empowered and consulted. Governance was inclusive.

Alhaji Abdulfatah Ahmed sustained and deepened that prosperity. Under his leadership, Kwara became a model for infrastructural renewal. He completed KWASU campuses, built the famous Diamond Underpass at Geri Alimi, constructed over 40 major roads across Kwara Central, South and North, including the Arandun-Esie-Omu-Aran-Oro Road, the Offa-Ira Road, and the Share-Patigi Road. He launched the Light-Up Kwara project that illuminated our towns at night and boosted the nightlife economy.

Under Ahmed, the Kwara State Internal Revenue Service, KW-IRS, was reformed and became number one in the North-Central, allowing the state to pay salaries without depending solely on federal allocation. The KWABES youth empowerment programme, the SME support fund, the renovation of over 400 schools, the equipping of General Hospitals, and the Harmony Holdings that created thousands of jobs all happened during that era.

Market women enjoyed soft loans. Artisans enjoyed patronage. Farmers enjoyed fertilizer and tractor subsidies. Students enjoyed bursary and scholarship. Life was truly abundant for Kwarans.

Sadly, since 2019, that era of mass prosperity has been replaced by an era of mass suffering, hunger, insecurity and educational retrogression.

THE SECURITY COLLAPSE AND EDUCATIONAL RETROGRESSION

No example explains the urgent need for liberation more than what has happened to our highly revered traditional institution and our educational institutions, especially in Kwara South and Kwara North.

In the past, the stool of an Oba and Emir was sacred. Today, under the watch of the APC administration of Governor Abdulrahman AbdulRazaq, our Obas and Emirs have become targets for bandits and kidnappers, who abduct them for huge ransoms contributed by poor communities.

Reports from credible media and security sources indicate that several traditional rulers have been kidnapped, and tragically, three of them have died in these unfortunate bandit-related circumstances, with a fourth dying shortly after regaining freedom.

These include:

1. His Royal Highness, Oba Olusegun Aremu-Cole, the Olukoro of Koro-Ekiti in Ekiti Local Government Area. He was brutally killed in his palace in February 2024 by gunmen who invaded his residence at night, while his wife and one other person were abducted.

2. The Baale of Ogbayo in Oke-Ode, Ifelodun Local Government. He was killed in his palace in September 2025 after gunmen invaded the community at dawn.

3. His Royal Highness, Oba Salman Olátúnjì Aweda, the Oba of Olayinka Community in Ifelodun Local Government. He was abducted alongside his wife and another resident in early 2026, and reports indicate he died while in captivity after a huge ransom was demanded.

4. His Royal Highness, the Olugbesi of Igbesi in Ifelodun Local Government Area, Oba Moses Oyinloye Iwedunmoye I. After spending days in the den of kidnappers, he was released following the payment of a huge ransom reportedly contributed by Kwara South indigenes. Tragically, he died a few days after his release from captivity as a result of trauma and brief illness suffered in the kidnappers' den, despite being rushed to the hospital by his family. His son, Prince Olanikanmi, confirmed his passage.

CONCLUSION

From 2003 to 2019 under Saraki and Ahmed, we had mass prosperity, Shonga Farms, Shoprite Mall, functional KWASU campuses, a School of Nursing in Oke-Ode, and respected traditional stools. Today, we have mass suffering, relocated institutions, comatose satellite campuses, Obas fleeing their palaces, and wives and children of the Emir of Yashikira abducted, and a governor who is celebrated by outsiders but abandoned by his own people at home, even on the day of his turbaning as Sardauna.

2027 is our opportunity to liberate ourselves.

Let every Kwaran rise and massively support Engr. Sulaiman Bolakale Kawu and Rev. Cornelius Oluwasegun Fawenu. For Kwarans' liberation, let us vote Kawu-Fawenu!

Chief Otunola Adebayo Awoniyi, the National Coordinator of The Kwara State Grassroots Movement writes from Omu-Aran, Irepodun Local Government Area of Kwara State.

He urged private-sector employers to emulate the Federal Government by considering additional retirement benefits for their workers, in recognition of years of service and contribution to organisational growth.

Such measures, he said, would complement the formal pension system and strengthen retirement security for Nigerian workers.

Buwai also stressed the need for sustained reforms and responsible management of pension funds, noting that gains in the sector must be consolidated through effective regulation, timely remittances and improved compliance by employers.

His comments came against the backdrop of broader reforms in the financial sector, including banking recapitalisation, tax reforms and the rapid expansion of financial technology — all central to discussions at the FICAN conference.

The pension reform, introduced in 2004 to replace the largely unfunded and unsustainable defined-benefit arrangement with a contributory system, has since become a major component of Nigeria's financial architecture.

LCCI applaud CBN's MPR slash to 23%, says easing must translate to cheaper credit

By: Tijani Salako

The Lagos Chamber of Commerce and Industry (LCCI) has applauded the Central Bank of Nigeria's decision to cut the Monetary Policy Rate (MPR) by 350 basis points to 23 per cent, affirmed that reduction must translate into affordable credit for businesses.

The CBN's Monetary Policy Committee (MPC) announced the cut from 26.5 per cent at the end of its 307th meeting.

In a statement on Monday, the Director General of LCCI, Dr. Chinyere Almona, described the move as a significant easing of monetary conditions and a positive signal for businesses, especially Micro, Small and Medium Enterprises (MSMEs) constrained by high borrowing costs.

Dr Almona said a lower policy rate could reduce cost of funds, improve credit conditions and support private sector investment through the monetary transmission mechanism. However, she cautioned that the cut would not automatically lower lending rates or improve credit access.

"Now we have a lower MPR, but the lending environment remains challenging. The cost of borrowing is only one component of the overall business-risk equation," she said.

According to her, businesses still face high energy costs, logistics expenses, exchange-rate risks, rising input costs, infrastructure gaps and high cost of doing business, while insecurity and policy uncertainty weigh on confidence and lenders' risk appetite.

She noted that banks assess cash flow, collateral, credit history, sectoral risks and operating environment, not just the policy rate, adding that unless underlying risks are addressed, the impact on SMEs may be limited.

"Credit transmission must be the next priority," she said.

LCCI called on the CBN to monitor how banks respond to the easing, particularly in lending rates and credit to productive sectors, and urged government and financial institutions to strengthen credit guarantees and de-risking instruments for SMEs.

The Chamber also advocated wider use of cash-flow-based lending, credit scoring and movable assets as collateral, noting that many viable SMEs are locked out by lack of conventional security.

It said monetary easing should be complemented by measures to tackle structural constraints, including energy costs, logistics, infrastructure deficiencies and multiple regulatory charges that weaken businesses' ability to service loans.

Dr. Almona added that additional liquidity should be channelled to productive sectors such as manufacturing, agriculture, agro-processing, trade, logistics, technology, healthcare and construction to boost output and jobs.

CPPE raises alarm as retail trade employing 27.5% of workforce faces growing foreign incursion

By: Tijani Salako

The Centre for the Promotion of Private Enterprise (CPPE) has raised concerns over the growing encroachment of foreign nationals, especially Chinese traders, into Nigeria's retail and distributive trade sector.

This was contained in a statement issued by the Managing Director of the institute, Dr Muda Yusuf, who noted that the development poses a threat to employment protection, fair competition, investment policy and the integrity of the country's immigration and business permit regime.

Dr Yusuf said Nigeria's distributive trade sector is a major source of employment and livelihoods, particularly for micro, small and medium enterprises, as millions of Nigerians depend on longstanding commercial relationships with Chinese wholesale and retail trade across textiles and fabrics, ICT products and accessories, major distributors, helping to automobile spare parts and supply machinery, industrial tyres, electrical products, inputs, consumer goods, plumbing materials, household technology products and other essential items to the Nigerian consumer and industrial products.

However, the sector employs an estimated 27.5 per cent of Nigeria's workforce. Increasing penetration of foreign traders into the retail segment therefore deserves urgent policy attention.

The CPPE clarified that its concern is not about Chinese investment or Nigeria's broader economic relationship with China, describing China as one of Nigeria's largest trading partners and the leading source of imports into the country.

According to Yusuf, Nigerian businesses have maintained

He stressed that foreign investment remains important to Nigeria's development where it brings capital, technology, industrial capacity, employment, exports and new productive capabilities.

The economist, however, argued that the growing movement of some foreign suppliers and traders into the retail segment, where Nigerians already possess substantial capacity, raises legitimate concerns about market structure and fair competition.

He explained that when overseas manufacturers or major suppliers sell products to Nigerian importers and distributors and later establish retail operations that compete directly with those same businesses, indigenous enterprises become vulnerable. Yusuf warned that retail trade has relatively low entry barriers and provides livelihoods for millions of Nigerians through SMEs, family-owned businesses and self-employed entrepreneurs, making the sector critical to employment creation.

He noted that with the economy facing unemployment, poverty, weak consumer purchasing power, high financing costs and mounting pressure on small businesses, government policies should be sensitive to developments capable of displacing domestic enterprises.

Tin-Can port management affirms free traffic flow as joint task force curtails gridlock

By Kareem Malik

The management of Tin Can Island Port has dismissed reports of renewed traffic congestion along the port corridor, insisting that sustained interventions by relevant authorities and agencies have restored free movement of trucks and ended gridlock around the facility.

The clarification followed an online report in mid-September which raised concerns over alleged bypassing of the Nigerian Ports Authority (NPA) truck call-up system and Transit Truck Parks (TTPs) by some truck drivers, as well as traffic congestion along the corridor.

In a statement issued on behalf of the port management, MVGC Consult said the concerns should be viewed against the substantial progress made in tackling truck-related congestion around Tin Can Island Port over the past three years.

According to the management, the NPA, Lagos State Government and Federal Road Safety Corps (FRSC) had constituted a joint task force to address the congestion, resulting in improved traffic management and restoration of free movement along the corridor.

It said the intervention had remained sustainable, enabling thousands of trucks to access the port through a coordinated admittance system for legitimate operations.

Kamo State explains Funke Akindele's absence from movie premiere

By: Akeem Adeyemi.

Nigerian content creator and actor Kamo State has addressed speculation surrounding Funke Akindele's absence from the premiere of his debut cinema movie, Star Lomo.

Akindele, who Kamo regards as his godmother, was noticeably absent from the premiere held on Sunday, prompting speculation among social media users that the pair might have fallen out.

The actress' absence subsequently generated discussions online, with some linking it to an alleged disagreement between the two entertainers.

However, Kamo has dismissed the speculation, explaining that Akindele was outside Nigeria when the premiere took place.

In a post on X, he appealed to members of the public to stop drawing conclusions about their relationship, stressing that they remain on good terms.

"I woke up to see different opinions online about Iyamii and myself. Please we are on good terms.

"She missed my premiere because she wasn't in the country. So please don't assume otherwise. We have spoken about it, and she is going to support this film.

"I would appreciate it if our personal relationship isn't speculated on," he wrote.

Kamo's clarification came amid growing reactions to Akindele's absence from the premiere of his first cinema project.

Solomon Buchi challenges Tobi Adegboyega to sue over allegations

By: Akeem Adeyemi.

Social media commentator Solomon Buchi has challenged Pastor Tobi Adegboyega of SPAC Nation to take legal action against him over remarks he made about the pastor and his church.

Buchi issued the challenge in response to recent comments by Adegboyega, who had urged people with allegations against members of his church to report them to the police or seek redress through the courts.

In a video shared online, Buchi accused the pastor of attempting to intimidate critics by referring to possible legal action.

"If you're a man born of a woman, sue me. Let me teach you how to be cooked. We are in England, sue me," Buchi said.

The commentator further alleged that some people had been affected by Adegboyega's actions and claimed that individuals were prepared to publicly recount their experiences.

Buchi maintained that he interpreted Adegboyega's remarks as a warning directed at him but insisted that he was not intimidated by the prospect of a lawsuit.

Rema dismisses alleged feud with Davido: 'I've never had problems with artistes'

By: Akeem Adeyemi.

Afrobeats singer Divine Ikubor, popularly known as Rema, has dismissed reports of a rift between him and fellow Nigerian music star Davido.

Rema addressed the speculation during an interview with Ebro Darden and Laura Stylez, describing claims of a dispute between him and Davido as rumours.

Asked about his relationship with other

Afrobeats artistes and specifically his reported issues with Davido, the 'Calm Down' singer said he had never had problems with fellow musicians.

"That's rumours. Omo, that is rumours ooo. Like, from day one, I've never had problems with artistes," Rema said.

The singer added that he maintains respect for older and more established figures in the Nigerian music industry.

"I'm saying I have so much respect for the Ogs," he said.

Rema also made it clear that he has no interest in engaging in personal confrontations with other artistes, saying his focus remains on his music.

"I don't look for no one trouble. I just want to make good music, I don't want to fight," he added.

Why I linked Isbae U with Obasanjo for interview — Charly Boy

By: Akeem Adeyemi.

Veteran entertainer and activist Charly Boy has revealed that he played a role in connecting content creator Isbae U with former President Olusegun Obasanjo for an episode of the interview programme, Curiosity Made Me Ask.

Charly Boy made the disclosure in a post on X while reflecting on Obasanjo's appearance on the show and the interaction between the former president and the young content creator.

According to him, the encounter demonstrated how older Nigerians can support younger people by creating opportunities and being willing to step into their world.

"Sometimes, the greatest thing you fit give a young person no be money. Na opportunity. Look at wetin happen when Baba entered Bae U's world," he wrote in Pidgin English.

Charly Boy said Obasanjo's decision to participate in the unconventional interview showed that people from an older generation could connect with younger Nigerians when they were willing to understand their style.

He noted that the former president did not simply maintain a formal demeanour during the programme but participated in the humour and banter associated with the show.

"A man of his age and experience sat down with a young man whose style dey completely different from wetin he is used to. Baba no just sit there looking serious. He matched the energy, played along and showed Nigerians another side of himself," he said.

Charly Boy subsequently disclosed that he helped facilitate the meeting between Obasanjo and Isbae U.

"And who helped make that connection happen? Charly Boy. Fada believed in the young people behind that show enough to pull Baba into their space," he said.

Obasanjo's appearance generated widespread attention, particularly because of his willingness to participate in the programme's unconventional style of questioning and humour.

During the interview, the former president was asked about several Nigerian entertainers and admitted that he was unfamiliar with some of them, including Don Jazzy, Poco Lee and Carter Efe.

'I was mocked for getting pregnant out of wedlock' — Sophia Momodu

By: Akeem Adeyemi.

Nigerian entrepreneur and influencer Sophia Momodu has opened up about the emotional distress she experienced after becoming pregnant outside marriage by Afrobeats star Davido.

Momodu spoke about her experience during a United Nations General Assembly event in New York on Monday, where she reflected on the criticism and social pressure she faced following her pregnancy.

According to her, the situation attracted intense public scrutiny partly because she is the daughter of a pastor.

"I am a pastor's daughter who got pregnant out of wedlock by a global superstar. And I was mocked. It was crazy. I had to find myself in the midst of all that," she said.

Momodu explained that the sustained criticism affected her emotionally and made it difficult for her to speak openly despite being a public figure.

"For a long time, I didn't have a voice despite being famous. I was worried and getting drained by the negative criticisms," she said.

She added that having a child outside marriage is still viewed by some Nigerians as particularly unacceptable when the woman comes from a religious family.

"If you are a Nigerian, you will know that it is almost a taboo for a pastor's daughter to have a child out of wedlock," she added.

Momodu said she eventually began reclaiming her voice after repeatedly being told to remain silent because of the circumstances surrounding her pregnancy.

She is the mother of Imade Adeleke, Davido's first daughter.

Infantino proposes FIFA governance review amid growing pressure

By: Akeem Adeyemi.

FIFA president Gianni Infantino has proposed an independent review of the organisation's governance structure amid growing scrutiny over his leadership and the collapse of a controversial plan involving the federation's commercial rights.

Infantino made the proposal in a letter addressed to members of the FIFA Council and presidents of the organisation's 211 member associations ahead of the council's October 15 meeting.

The proposed review would examine how major strategic decisions are made within FIFA and identify possible measures to improve transparency, participation and accountability.

The move follows the withdrawal of the FIFA Forward Enterprise proposal, which would have established a commercial entity to manage FIFA competitions and allowed private investors to acquire a minority stake.

The proposal, which included commercial rights connected to the World Cup, was withdrawn in July following opposition from several football authorities.

Infantino acknowledged that details of the plan became public before FIFA's internal procedures had been completed.

"I recognise that, without the full context, this caused concern and created the impression that decisions had already been taken. They had not," he said.

The FIFA president also maintained that the proposal never involved transferring control of sporting matters to private investors.

"FIFA's democratic processes, independence and sporting authority were never for sale. They are not for sale and never will be," Infantino said.

Under his proposed review, the respective responsibilities of the FIFA president, Bureau, Council and Congress would be examined.

Infantino also proposed consultations involving the confederations, member associations and other stakeholders.

Ballon d'Or: Mbappe hopes to dedicate award to Africa

By: Akeem Adeyemi.

Real Madrid forward Kylian Mbappe has expressed his desire to win the 2026 Ballon d'Or and dedicate the prestigious award to African football fans.

heritage while maintaining his French identity.

Speaking about his connection with Africa during the Ballon d'Or race, Mbappe said his upbringing remained strongly influenced by his African roots despite growing up in France.

"I've always had an upbringing steeped in African culture, even though I was born in France and did everything in France. I've never cut the link with my roots and my origins," he said.

The France international, who was born in Bondy and raised in France, has consistently spoken about his Cameroonian and Algerian

AFCON 2027Q: Iwobi, Lookman, Bassey, 17 others join Super Eagles camp

By: Akeem Adeyemi.

Twenty players have reported for duty at the Super Eagles' training camp in Ikot Ikpen, Akwa Ibom State, ahead of Nigeria's 2027 Africa Cup of Nations qualifying campaign.

Among the players already in camp are Moses Simon, Akor Adams, Taiwo Awoniyi, Isaac James, Emmanuel Fernandez, Benjamin Fredericks, Moses Uzor and George Ilenikhena.

Arthur Okonkwo, Alex Iwobi, Semi Ajayi, Calvin Bassey, Ola Aina, Ademola Lookman, Bright Osayi-Samuel and Chibuike Nwairi have also joined the squad.

Tolu Arokodare, Bruno Onyemaechi, Raphael Onyedika and Frank Onyeka complete the list of 20 players currently with the team.

Super Eagles media officer Promise Efoghe confirmed that Wilfred Ndidi, Samuel Chukwueze and goalkeeper Stanley Nwabali were expected to arrive around midday.

"Camp opened today, and preparations have commenced for the qualifiers," Efoghe said.

Nigeria will open its qualifying campaign against Madagascar in Uyo on September 25 before travelling to face Guinea-Bissau four days later.

The Super Eagles are also scheduled to take on Russia in an international friendly on October 6.

Efoghe said the team would hold its first training session on Tuesday, with the opening 15 minutes made available to accredited journalists.

He added that players would be available for individual media interviews on Wednesday at the team's base in Ikot Ikpen.

The exact time for the Wednesday media session will be communicated by the team management.

La Liga president hits back at Real Madrid over refereeing conspiracy claims

By: Akeem Adeyemi.

La Liga president Javier Tebas has criticised Real Madrid over what he described as renewed claims of a refereeing conspiracy against the Spanish giants.

Tebas reacted on Tuesday after Real Madrid coach Jose Mourinho raised concerns over officiating following his side's 2-1 defeat to Atletico Madrid in the derby on Sunday.

Mourinho had taken printed screenshots to his post-match press conference showing tackles by Atletico players that he believed should have resulted in red cards.

Responding to an article supporting Madrid's position, Tebas accused sections of the club's media supporters of reviving what he called an established narrative about referees being biased against Real Madrid.

"Here they go again, the mouthpieces and the regime's television, building the same old narrative — the permanent conspiracy," Tebas wrote.

He questioned suggestions that refereeing decisions should take into account the financial importance or commercial value of clubs.

"Real Madrid are crucial to La Liga. But claiming that 'La Liga is worth nothing' without them reveals the disdain for the other clubs, their fans, and their history. The competition belongs to no one," he said.

Tebas also rejected claims that referees were deliberately acting against Madrid, arguing that such accusations could distract from the club's performances on the pitch.

"Claiming that referees are directed against Real Madrid is living in another galaxy," he added.

"That narrative serves as an excuse to cover up other shortcomings that are plain to see in these first matches of the season."

Real Madrid responded later on Tuesday, describing Tebas' remarks as "intolerable".

The club accused the La Liga president of repeatedly using his institutional position to attack and discredit Real Madrid.

Madrid said Spanish professional football needed leadership based on neutrality and urged changes in the way the league is administered.

Sadio Mané launches $20m mango processing project in Senegal hometown

By: Akeem Adeyemi.

Senegal and Al-Nasser forward Sadio Mané has invested about $20.4 million in an agro-industrial project designed to boost mango processing and employment in his hometown of Bambali.

The project, known as SM10 Agro, was officially launched on September 19 in Bambali, located in Senegal's Sédhiou Region.

The facility is expected to process up to 8,500 tonnes of mangoes annually, with production focused on mango pulp, dried fruit and mango butter.

The development will also include a 500-hectare plantation dedicated to Kent mangoes.

The investment is located in Casamance, one of Senegal's major mango-producing areas, where inadequate processing capacity has contributed to significant post-harvest losses.

According to figures cited by Ecofin Agency, Senegal loses between 30 and 45 per cent of harvested fruit annually due to challenges including farming practices, harvesting, transportation and limited processing facilities.

Speaking at the launch, Mané said he wanted his impact to extend beyond his achievements on the football pitch.

"I don't want to be remembered only for the goals I scored. Before the stadiums, the lights and the victories, there was, of course, Bambali. This is where my dreams began," he said.

"We want to help create jobs and develop agriculture."

The processing plant is expected to provide a local outlet for mangoes that may otherwise struggle to reach European markets because of phytosanitary requirements.

A 2023 study cited by Ecofin found that mango-processing facilities in Casamance were concentrated mainly around Ziguinchor, leaving Sédhiou and Kolda with limited processing infrastructure despite their agricultural output.

The study also identified inadequate packaging and labelling services as another challenge for processors in the region, forcing some businesses to rely on facilities in Dakar.
